

Temple Israel welcomes the Vogel Family!

Brooke, Ashley, Stacy, Andrew, and Scott

“We belong to Baron Hirsch Synagogue. We both grew up there, and have never belonged anywhere else. Our children attended Bornblum Solomon Schechter School, and once they graduated from the 8th grade, we planned for them to continue their Jewish education.

We have always heard wonderful things about Temple Israel’s Religious School. Though we have spent much time in Temple with friends and family, as non-members, we never really considered it an option for our children. When we learned that Rabbi Greenstein was the 10th grade Sunday school teacher, we began to ask and learn more about the program. Suddenly, all of the pieces of the puzzle began to fit together.

Rabbi Greenstein’s compassionate, caring nature combined with his inspiring and contagious love of Judaism made Temple Israel’s Religious School the perfect setting for our children.

So we are now among the handful of families that belong to both an Orthodox and a Reform synagogue. But in our lives, they both fulfill a certain purpose in their own unique way.

I would imagine our children’s Zayde (Kirke Lewis) must be looking down on this and smiling!”
