

“The Story of Stuff”

Dear Adam and Eve:

If I were to be interested in exploring something really worthy about the environment, what would be the best?

Thanks, Interested

Dear Person of Interest:

We don't know about THE best; however, there is a video you should definitely explore. It is titled “The Story of Stuff with Annie Leonard”. For the first time in one spot, it connects, from extraction through sale, use and disposal, how all the stuff in our lives affects our own communities and around the world. It also then summons us to create a more sustainable and just world.

You'll laugh, you'll learn and it will forever change your perspective on “stuff”. Just go on line to www.storyofstuff.com. It is an entertaining 20 minute film good for a wide range of age groups, from upper elementary school to retirement ages. Be aware though, it is thought-provoking!

After you see it yourself, you are going to want to share it with friends. So, although they prefer that people just view it on line, they do offer an opportunity to purchase a DVD at a very small price so that you can share it with others.

And Remember!

RETHINK! REDUCE! REUSE! RECYCLE!

Please email questions/comments to DearAdamandEve@timemphis.org or write “Dear Adam and Eve”, c/o Temple Israel, 1376 E. Massey Rd., Memphis, TN 38120

