

Live from NY's 92nd Street Y
Jim Cramer: Navigating in Volatile Markets
Madeline Noveck, Moderator
Tuesday, October 12, 2010
7:00-8:00 P.M.

Programs broadcast live via satellite from New York City's 92nd Street Y
Sponsored by the Hohenberg-Scheidt Fund for Lifetime Learning

Temple Israel is privileged to host Live from NY's 92nd Street Y! speaker series. We've chosen from newsmakers, political figures, opinion-shapers and authors — some of the world's most fascinating people for compelling and thought-provoking interactive discussion. You will feel like you are in the audience in New York while you watch each of the speakers. You'll even have the ability to pose questions to each speaker during question-and-answer sessions at the end of each broadcast.

Jim Cramer is the enthusiastic host of CNBC's "Mad Money" and co-founder of www.TheStreet.com.

In a turbulent economy, all investors have questions about weathering the storm. As one of the most outspoken and fiery commentators on managing your financial future, Cramer brings his experience as a market analyst and former hedge fund manager to help you make the most of your money. In this lively, frank, and irreverent talk, he'll answer your questions and help you to prepare for the future by making sound financial decisions today.

