

“Traveling Recycle Status”

Dear Adam and Eve:

After getting to the airport for a trip to Ireland recently, I decided to chronicle some of what I saw that might indicate sensitivity for the environment. I hope you will consider publishing this so that we can discover what is being done here and abroad.

1. The first thing that caught my attention was that, next to the regular bins, there are recycle bins for bottles, cans and paper at the Memphis airport “C” terminal. Loved the title of the recycle bin, “Wash, Squash and Recycle”! Took a picture of that one!

2. When I went to one of the little “book and candy” type stores to check out maybe buying a neck rest so that I could sleep on the long flight, I found just the perfect ones: the pillow filling was new polyester fiber made from recycled plastic bottles.

3. Even the paper band around the neck pillow indicated that it was made from recycled paper and also had, in big bold print, instructions to “Please Be Kind to the Earth and recycle this packaging.” I did; I brought it along for the entire trip and back home then put it in my recycling bin!

Signed, Traveler

Dear Traveler:

I will publish the rest of your enviro travelogue in upcoming articles as it was too full for just one space. How encouraging for all of us that you could see efforts beginning to be made for the well being of the earth.

RETHINK! REDUCE! REUSE! RECYCLE!
